All Hail Locarno
"With God's Blessing"
Sitting Pretty
The Women's Cafe

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by The Star Co.

EUROPEAN POWERS, including conquered Germany, yesterday signed the Locarno treaty, pledging themselves against future war. Should Germany attack France, England will help France. If France attacks Germany, England will help Germany.

LET'S HOPE that's the beginning of a "United States of Europe," although it's a good deal of a hope.

At least Europe managed this affair without asking the United States to "sit in" or pay any bills. You can be grateful for that.

IN RUSSIA, two gypsies stole a horse, and were seen leading it into a forest. Peasants surrounded the wood and began "beating it" for their prey, as they had long beaten the same forest for game hunted by the nobles.

The gypsies were found, kicked, dragged into the open. Women and children gathored brushwood. The gypsies were fastened to the bonfire, the women screaming, "Light it, with the blessing of God." It was lit, and the gypsies burned alive.

FORTUNATELY, that's a proceeding unusual in this day. Not long ago such burnings occurred by thousands. Jews were burned alive, hundreds of them in one day, because they would not deny their own religion.

Protestants were burned alive, because their faith was different. Servetus, because he didn't believe in the teachings of Protestantism, was burned alive y Calvin. Sir Thomas More, and man of real genius, who wrote Utopia," was beheaded in England by the Protestants.

"LIGHT IT with the blessing of God," said the Russian omen starting the bonfire.

A million such fires have been ghted in the past, with the essing c the king, the law d the church. Now such barrism is left to peasants, as vage, superstitious and brutal laws of king and church of er days.

OVERNOR PINCHOT says the coal mine owners dere war. But they don't. They just sit back, knowing that they are "sitting pretty."

Lewis, the head of the mine workers, "leaves the next move to an outraged public." What can the outraged public do, except try to burn slate and other poor substitutes.

Pinchot, as Governor of a State that produces hard coal, might do something. Governors have power. Theodore Roosevelt once made the coal men sit up, but then he was President, and took seriously the fact that the people were without coal.

IN THE Swiss village of Piona men drank brandy, and got drunk. There was no cafe and the village was run on a "hard stuff" basis.

The men wanted a cafe. The women objected, opened a women's cafe and ran it, supplying the men with light beer and wine and keeping an eye on them. Strange to say, the men who objected at first are now contented, and what is more important, they are sober.

Drunkenness has disappeared from the village.

Here we are trying just the other experiment, driving out light wine and beer, putting in bootleg whiskey. Time will tell which is the better plan.

HIGH POWERS in the Republican party have changed their minds about driving young Senator La Follette out of the Republican party. Senator Watson, head of the committee on committees, will invite La Follette to become a committee member.

That's wise. Republicans wouldn't gain much by ignoring a man like La Follette, who has an able and intelligent State solidly behind him.

P. C. LUTHER, devoting his life to planting trees, celebrates his sixty-third birthday by announcing his intention to begin planting 10,000,000 more trees. Charles L. Pack, president of the American Tree Association, wonders who can beat Mr. Luther's record.

It would be done easily if the government would use half a dozen flying machines to scatter seeds along naked mountain ranges, swept by fire.

3 CONFESS LONG LIST OF CRIMES

One of the quartet of "touring thugs" against whom the police charge at least 14 recent hold-ups sneeringly boasted today that he was under the protection of a powerful politician.

The man was in no whit dismayed when he was informed that the police would ask for bail to be set at $75,000 for each of the men.

"I have a powerful pol friend," he said, "who will not only go my bail, but will get me out of this trouble."

He added with a defiant smile to those assembled at Police Headquarters: "To hell with the police and the whole department."

The remark and the attitude of the thug gave the police additional evidence that there is an actual "crime ring" working in and near Boston with a powerful master-mind at its head.

Fourteen hold-ups have been confessed to by three of the quartet, according to the police.

The fourteen "stickups," part of a cycle that brought curt words from police heads to their officers on the street, and sowed seeds of terror throughout the greater city, were confessed individually by the trio, according to the police.

These three are Francis Golding

HUB POLICE SHAKEN UP

The biggest police shakeup in Boston's history is scheduled for the next few days.

This means the transfer of many captains and lieutenants, and an influx of new blood into the department.

The drastic decision was arrived at by the police heads in their desperate search for some measure which would enable them to cope with the activity of thugs.

The shake-up will spare none, according to the reports emanating from headquarters. Captains who for years have been in charge of desirable precincts in the heart of the city will find themselves in stations which the patrolmen term "the woods."

Sixteen new sergeants are to be appointed within ten days from the twenty-five patrolmen who stood highest on the civil service examination, with especial attention being paid to the patrolman's efficiency against criminals.

The force is to be augmented by forty-five new patrolmen who will fill the places left vacant by resignations and discharges and promotions.

Three of the captains who are scheduled for transfer, according to a report that has spread through the department like wildfire, are Captain Matthew J. Dailey of the Fields Corner division, Captain Perley Skillings of the new Milk street

CAUGHT IN CLEANUP OF CROOKS

The police charge these three boys with two score hold-ups recently in Greater Boston and declare that they have confessed to some. A fourth member of their gang is also under arrest. Left to right, they gave their names as Frank Golden, 17, of Pennsylvania avenue, Somerville; Charles Roper, 18, of Myrtle street, West End, and Charles Mullen, 17, of East Seventh street, South Boston. Bail of $75,000 is to be asked by the police.

FULLER REAPPOINTS PHONE RATE BOOSTER

Reappointment of one of the Public Utilities Commissioners who awarded the $9,000,000 rate boost to the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. was made by Governor Fuller today.

Henry G. Wells of Haverhill, the only Public Utilities Commissioner whose term has expired since the rate increases were allowed, was reappointed.

Five other reappointments were made by Governor Fuller, the list going to the executive for approval.

When the storm of protest arose against the exorbitant rate increases allowed the telephone monopoly by the Public Utilities Commission Governor Fuller declared he would make the commissioners explain their action and it was Commissioner Wells who represented the Commission in replying to the chief executive.

Following the "investigation," the Governor said that while he regretted his inability to act he found no legal way of doing so. Mayor Curley subsequently suggested that he make the Commissioners resign, as he had called upon an Elevated trustee to do.

Besides Wells, those reappointed are William M. Williams of New Bedford, commissioner of public

RHINELANDER WOOED HIS DUSKY WIFE 'LIKE PRINCESS,' SAYS MILLS

White Plains, N. Y., Dec. 2.—Leonard Kip Rhinelander was the "love slave" of his dusky bride, Alice Beatrice Jones, and wooed her "like the daughter of a queen."

So declared ex-Judge Isaac N. Mills, Rhinelander's chief counsel, in his closing argument to the jury today in Kip's suit to annul his marriage to the quadroon daughter of a negro "odd job man."

"The question of race in this case is most important," shouted Mills before the jurymen. "If any of you had a son I am sure you would rather see him in a casket than see him married to a mulatto wife!"

Lashing out at Kip's own kin, Attorney Mills thus scored his client's own father:

"Philip Rhinelander is more to blame for the fool position that this young man has brought himself into than the young man himself."

Mills created a stir in the court by declaring his life had been threatened because of the way he had battled the case. His remarks brought quick objections on the part of his opposing counsel, Attorney Lee Parsons Davis, representing Mrs. Kip.

"Leonard will hail a verdict for the plaintiff as a prisoner on the steps of the scaffold hails a pardon from the Governor," Mills shouted as he began his address.

"This is a matter of life and death. You might just as well bury him

WOONSOCKET HOTEL BURNS; FIVE INJURED

Woonsocket, R. I., Dec. 2.—Five firemen were injured this afternoon when fire destroyed the old Normandie Hotel on Cumberland street, with a loss estimated at $50,000.

The injured are: Chief Augustin Cote, hit by a falling ladder; Deputy Chief Louis Tessier, Hoseman Napoleon Dolois, Hoseman Thomas Hourigan, cuts, and Hoseman Jean Daignault, fell down stairs.

A large number of guests were at lunch and the spread of the flames was so rapid none was able to return to his room for his belongings. The fire started in the boiler room.

The Normandie was a three-story wooden building, with a grocery and a clothing firm on the ground floor. It was owned by J. E. and Napoleon Mailloux.

VICTIMS FROM ALL OVER GREATER BOSTON CALLED IN TO LOOK THEM OVER

of No. 73 Pennsylvania avenue, Somerville; Charles J. Mullin, No. 479 East Seventh street, South Boston, and Charles Roper of Myrtle street, West End.

ALL VICTIMS INVITED.

The holdups included three in Cambridge, two in Chelsea and one each in Somerville, East Boston, Roxbury, Dorchester, Charlestown, Newbury street, Gloucester street, Beacon street and Belvidere street, all in the Back Bay.

All victims of holdups that could be reached today and police of various communities who believe the quartet under arrest may have been responsible for depredations in their districts were requested to look the prisoners over in an attempt to identify them with holdup jobs.

But in the event that any victims should be overlooked, the police asked the newspapers to broadcast a request that all holdup victims during the last month communicate with Special Officer John Lowney of the Back Bay station or Special Officer Arthur Tiernan of the East Dedham street station.

An opportunity will be given these victims to pick the alleged gunmen out of a group for identification.

Police Commissioner Wilson has personally ordered these special officers to investigate every holdup complaint from victims in the past month, as it is believed the men under arrest can be linked with many more.

Five other men are also held under arrest and are charged with complicity in other holdups, but the "tearing four" who are declared to have confessed today are the prizes in the eyes of the authorities.

The police say that following a grilling the youthful thugs admitted complicity in many Greater Boston holdups. Not all of them were in all the holdups, but the police declare the most serious holdup jobs were planned and engineered by the four together with the slayer of Patrolman Black, still at large.

HELD FOR IDENTIFICATION.

The five others arrested for complicity in other robberies and holdups described themselves as John H. Lyons of West Canton street, who admitted connection with automobile thefts, as did John McAvoy of West Brookline street, according to the police; Walter Eves of Ivy street was found to be wanted for the larceny of an automobile; a bullet wound in the finger of Charles Roper of Myrtle street caused him to be held as a suspicious person, and Joseph Cambra was found to be wanted for receiving stolen goods.

KNOWN TO POLICE.

The identification of the thug slayer of Policeman Black of Andover came today as one of the most vivid pages yet written into Boston's criminal anthology.

Smudgy fingerprints left on the windshield of an automobile he tried to commandeer to make his escape after shooting the policeman to death are leading detectives toward the lair of the murderer in the South End of Boston.

The arrest of a widely-known thug, formerly a resident of Salem, who for many months has been one of the most notorious characters in Boston's lower strata, is expected today.

HOLDUP VICTIMS.

Among the holdups and the loot charged to the youthful thugs who have been captured, and to some of which they have confessed, according to the police, are:

November 15—Ralph Smalley, on Grampian Way, $65; taxi driver Francis L. Attride, on Brighton avenue, $13, and his passengers, Arthur J. Malling and Patrick J. Bonner, $250 and a watch; Samuel Perlman, on Seaver street, $200 in money and jewelry.

November 19—Margaret White, handbag and $3, on Ashland street; Hernet W. Cole, $1.80, on Dorchester avenue; Harry O. Fraver, fountain pen, on Woodrow avenue, Dorchester; Michael A. Sullivan, $23 and fountain pen, on Huntington avenue; Stedman Chandler, $30 and watch, in front of his home on Newbury street; Dr. Nathaniel Allison, $25, checks, watch and knife, on Beacon street; Albert Snapp, $4, in front of his Mt. Vernon street home. Several holdups were committed in nearby towns and cities that night.

SPREAD TO SUBURBS.

November 24—Harold Johnson, for $5 on Alford street, Charlestown; Dr. Walter I. Hurd, $29 and watch on Medford street; Carroll W. Briggs, 60 cents, in front of his home on Bellevue street, Dorchester; James S. Kilty, $24, his watch and overcoat, on Beacon street.

November 27—Zacharias Novelle of Quincy, $35, on Casenove street; Fisher's restaurant on Tremont street, $1,243.

November 28—Economy store in Hyde Park, $155; John P. Murray, beaten and robbed of $240 on Tremont street, South End. Several other holdups on this night in various outlying towns and cities.

Other crimes which the police expect to lay to the prisoners include:

James J. Morrissey, held up on Central street, Somerville, but the thugs were frightened away; Samuel Sherman, robbed of a bag containing an empty bottle and a newspaper on Chestnut street, Chelsea; John McDonald, robbed of $32 on Spring street, Everett; Harold Hewett, driver of a baker's wagon, ran from thugs who attempted to hold him up; Raymond Porter, robbed of $4 and keys in front of his home on Harvard street, Cambridge; George L. Russell, shot at by thugs in his store on Plymouth street, Cambridge.

Four Held in Lawrence as Members of Thug Band

Lawrence, Dec. 2 (I.N.S.)—Four Lawrence men, believed by police to be members of the gang which for the past month has staged more than thirty holdups in this State, were taken into custody here today.

The men were arrested on a technical charge of stealing an automobile in Lowell in 1923. They gave their names as Pasquale Sacco, James Kelley, Alfred Gauvin and Joseph Denuncio, all of this city.

Police took fingerprints of the four men, to be compared with a thumb print on the automobile boarded by the bandit who shot and killed Patrolman Robert Black of Andover.

SCOFF AT DENIALS.

Captain Skillings is to go to the Back Bay station, and, according to the report, Captain Robert Grant of the Hyde Park station, is to be included in the transfer.

While Commissioner Wilson and Superintendent Crowley have denied that these transfers are planned those most interested aver that they are merely evading discussions of their reasons.

Even with the additional forty-five patrolmen the ranks of the force are still thin, and the men will be compelled to double up on beats, unless the police heads are successful in their appeal for more policemen.

She was picked up by the Coast Guard about sixteen miles out, while en route to Honduras from Halifax, N. S. There was no evidence that the vessel had been in contact with the shore or figured in any rum-running.

ABOUT FACE ON INCOME TAX MEASURE

Washington, Dec. 2 (A.P.)—The House Ways and Means Committee today rescinded its proposal to allow a retroactive reduction in the inheritance taxes.

The provision was taken from the tax reduction bill after the Treasury had estimated it would mean a loss of $70,000,000 in revenue, rather than $20,000,000 as originally estimated.

The committee's decision for lower inheritance rates in future years, however, remains unchanged.

FLORIDA HALF-DROWNED, BUT FRUIT IS SPARED

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 2 (A.P.)—Florida—storm-tossed and rain-soaked—today was regaining its equilibrium after a hectic twenty-four to thirty-six hour session with the elements.

Damage mounting into hundreds of thousands of dollars was wrought particularly along the coast lines. Ten dead and about twenty injured, all negroes, is reported as the toll of the storm, which centered on Tampa, on the West Coast, and in the vicinity of Daytona Beach, on the Atlantic. The citrus crop of the fruit belt was not badly injured, said an announcement by the citrus exchange.

RUDY WILL LET WIFE GO, BUT NEEDS NEW CLOTHES

Paris, Dec. 2 (I.N.S.)—Rudolph Valentino left Paris for London today to have his wardrobe replenished by English tailors.

The movie "sheik" is considerably peeved over the public interest in the possibility of his being divorced by his wife.

"My wife has instituted divorce proceedings," he said, "and I came over to establish a residence and sigh the necessary papers to facilitate the process. That's all."

CHAPMAN, ON STAND, URGES HIS RETURN

State Prison, Wethersfield, Conn., Dec. 2 (A.P.)—Gerald Chapman took the witness stand today and swore that he had had no warning of his transfer from Atlanta prison, nor of the State's action in securing from President Coolidge a commutation of federal sentence for mail robbery.

Chapman was a witness but a few minutes and was not cross-examined. He is being heard on a writ of habeas corpus demanding his return to Atlanta.

Chapman spoke in low voice in answer to questions from Mr. Groehl, his counsel, and his pale cheeks became slightly flushed as he took the oath.

GOT NO WARNING.

On taking the witness seat he leaned backward in easy position. He told of his arrest in Muncie, Ind., and his arrival at Atlanta on January 21. He said that when taken from Atlanta he had no warning. All that was said to him was "come on," and in fifteen minutes he was on a train.

Chapman said he was not told why the transfer was being made. He said he considered himself a Federal prisoner and that when taken from prison to Superior Court he had no knowledge of the writ of habeas corpus.

"It's your request to be returned to Atlanta to finish your 25-year sentence?" asked Mr. Groehl.

"Yes."

Asked if he had requested Federal commutation of sentence, he replied "No."

Counsel asked if he insisted upon his rights, and Chapman said he did.

Mr. Groehl said that was all and Chapman left the stand.

ALCORN QUIZZED.

Judge Thomas indicated a willingness to give Chapman counsel forty-eight hours in which to prepare a brief to incorporate into it the main points in a brief prepared last Summer. He remarked, however, "It would seem that with four lawyers you should be ready today with the main brief. All of you have known since November 13 as to the matter which was coming up for consideration."

FROWNS ON "LOAN."

Almost from the outset of State Attorney Alcorn's examination, Groehl objected to any reference by the witness to the word "commutation."

Alcorn himself objected to Mr. Groehl calling the transfer a "loan." Mr. Alcorn said that in making the transfer of Chapman it was "apparent that Atlanta Prison was not a secure place for this man because he escaped from there twice."

Mr. Alcorn said the government "at all times intended that the State should have jurisdiction over the prisoner." He explained the procedure in the Ponzi case was followed, but would not point out the similarities in absence of his files.

Further questioning developed that the commutation by President Coolidge of the Federal sentence was at Mr. Alcorn's request.

Groehl said that he preferred use of the words "order of the President" instead of "commutation."

AROUND BOSTON TRAFFIC ROAD PLANNED

Connecting Links Needed Will Cost in Neighborhood of $2,000,000

A circumferential highway leading from the North to the South Shore, passing around the most thickly sections of the metropolitan area and to cost approximately $2,000,000, is set out as the greatest present highway need in the annual report of the Division of Metropolitan Planning.

The report covers the vast amount of work done during the year ending November 30. Engineering and construction work is already under way on many of the street improvements and upon completion these will signally help the traffic situation in the Metropolitan district.

The estimated cost of the missing links of the circumferential highway is as follows:

Sections in Lynn, Saugus and Melrose, $696,000; in Cambridge, $650,000, and in the Blue Hill district, $643,000—bringing the total to $1,969,000.

The total length of the circumferential route, combining both parkways and general traffic streets, is about 37 miles.

The construction of a few miles of missing links will complete the important circumferential route.

IMPROVEMENTS PROVIDED.

The Metropolitan District Commission has also substantially completed its revised plans for the Cottage Farm Bridge; and unless delayed by legal proceedings will let the contract for the bridge during the coming Spring.

The Legislature of 1925, acting upon reports of this Division, passed Acts providing for:

a. The construction of the Southern Artery (Chapter 330);

b. The extension of the West Roxbury Parkway to Newton Street (Chapter 313);

c. The widening and improvement of Morton Street by the City of Boston (Chapter 325);

d. The widening and improvement of River Street in Hyde Park by the City of Boston (Chapter 323);

e. The widening and improvement of Lower Main Street and Broadway by the City of Cambridge from the Cambridge Bridge to Mechanics Square (Chapter 284).

STREETS ADEQUATE.

The division has made an extensive study of existing parkways and thoroughfares which could properly form a part of an efficient circumferential route; and it presents with this report a plan embodying such a circumferential highway.

From the southerly end of the Fresh Pond Parkway there are adequate streets and parkways leading through Boston and Brookline to the Stony Brook Parkway, which in turn will carry traffic to Readville.

A short connecting link is required in Readville and another short link near Paul's Bridge and the Blue Hills Reservation is reached. It is then proposed to construct a parkway largely in the Blue Hills Reservation to Randolph avenue; thence follow Randolph avenue to the southerly edge of the reservation, thence by a new parkway along the southerly edge of the Blue Hills Reservation and West street to the Five Corners in Braintree, from which roads of good alignment and low gradients reach all sections of the South Shore.

COST OF BETTERMENTS.

The total length of the missing links provided for in the bill accompanying this act is 12.6 miles. The total length of the circumferential route combining both parkways and general traffic streets is about 37 miles. The estimated cost of the missing links of the circumferential highway herein recommended is as follows:

Sections in Lynn, Saugus and Melrose	$696,000
Section in Cambridge	650,000
Sections in the Blue Hills District	643,000
Total	$1,989,000

40 FLEE FROM FIRE IN MANCHESTER HOTEL

Manchester, N. H., Dec. 2 (I.N.S.).—Forty guests at the Milford Hotel here fled down the fire escape to the street today when fire swept through the Milford fruit store, causing damage estimated at $10,000.

Albert Rosenblatt of Providence, R. I., who was sleeping on the second floor of the hotel was aroused when he became stifled by the dense smoke and ran through the building notifying the guests.

Firemen confined the blaze to the fruit store.

CONFIRMS FINDINGS FOR BLOOD PRESSURE CURE

Toronto, Dec. 2.—Dr. W. J. MacDonald of St. Catherine's, Ont., who, some time ago announced experiments were being made to develop treatment for high blood pressure, now states the first findings concerning the possibilities of a remedy have been confirmed by experiments. Addressing the Academy of Medicine, whose guest at dinner he was, Dr. MacDonald told of the intensive work carried on for six months in the physiological laboratories at the University of Toronto.

JOBLESS GIRL KILLS SELF WITH GAS

Broken in Spirit, Frances Godfrey Commits Act That May Kill Mother, Too

The world that passed them by moved on today, but Miss Frances Godfrey, young hospital attendant, lay still and cold in the City Hospital morgue. Upstairs her grief-stricken mother, an invalid, tossed on a cot with nothing left to live for.

Frances turned on the gas in the little Roxbury room she had called home with her mother, and where they had attempted to stretch out the few remaining pennies while the girl sought for work.

The rebuffs and disappointments she suffered, coupled with the constant necessity for caring for the mother, afflicted with a nervous trouble, had proved too great a burden.

Up to a few weeks ago, according to the landlady at the Dudley street rooming house where Frances and her mother, Mrs. Mary Godfrey, lived, the girl had been, for three years, an attendant at the Westboro State Hospital.

But that job failed, and after a vain hunt for work in Salem, during which the little hoard dwindled rapidly, mother and daughter came to Boston, and daily did Frances make the rounds of the employment offices.

Somehow, Frances found herself alone in the room. Her mother was out.

Two lodgers, Beatrice Arnold and Delia Leonard, smelled gas and the odor was traced to the room of the Godfreys.

Then Mrs. Godfrey came back and the door was forced open. They found Frances dead. Gas filled the room, every chink of which had been stuffed with paper.

The police were summoned, but although Patrolman Leonard, Goode and McNamara made valiant attempts to revive the girl, she was beyond their aid.

The mother collapsed and they took her to the hospital.

CITY 'PLUMS'

cis X. Mahoney, the present incumbent, or Dr. Francis D. Donoghue, medical advisor to the Industrial Accident Board.

Institutions Commissioner — Frank L. Brier, former Registrar of Probate.

That Nichols will "clean out" City Hall has been denied on good authority. It is obvious, however, that he will retain only a few of the Curley appointees.

Many political clairvoyants declare that his appointments will be of such a character as to swerve Democratic votes in Boston to United States Senator Butler in the senatorial fight against former Senator David I. Walsh next Fall.

The mayor-elect refuses to discuss his appointments.

HAWES ONCE NICHOLS' AIDE.

John T. Hawes, who seems to have the pole for fire commissioner, was chief field deputy in the internal revenue collector's office, and for several years under Nichols.

Friends of Horace E. Dunkle, insurance man and life long friend of the mayor-elect, are using all their influence to have him named as fire commissioner.

Coupled with the report of a shake-up in the police department is the prophecy that Assistant District Attorney Frank S. Deland is to succeed Herbert A. Wilson as Police Commissioner.

Deland was City Treasurer during the Peters administration.

Ex-City Collector Edwin V. B. Parke will return to City Hall in some form of an executive administrator, it is expected; and Frank S. Deland is to have a berth in the hall if he fails to succeed Wilson.

The Redmond appointment, it is declared, would heal the breach between the Lodge and Butler forces.

David Jacobs, a Republican assistant in the Election Department, is slated for a berth in Nichols' secretarial family. George H. Johnson, prominent Elk, may also take a position as a secretary.

DUNN'S JOB IN BALANCE.

George R. Canty, former secretary to Mayor Peters, has been mentioned as soldiers' relief commissioner to replace General John H. Dunn, and also to succeed General Mark L. Hersey as superintendent of supplies, but Dunn may hold over on account of his organization affiliations.

A new superintendent of supplies is anticipated in William E. Kee, inspector and weigher in the Supply Department.

No change is anticipated in the board of assessors and the transit commission. Chairman Shea of the Park Department will also be a hold-over.

Penal Commissioner Philip A. Chapman appears to be firmly entrenched. Chairman Thomas J. Hurley, associate commissioner, will be retained, but there is doubt as to Commissioner Harding.

Chairman Burlen of the election department will unquestionably stay.

OLYMPIA MACRI WEARS SAD AND PENSIVE LOOK DURING HER SECOND ORDEAL IN COURT

Olympia Macri, child mother, now on trial as slayer of John Bagnano, in artistic pose.

Accused girl weeps on stand as she bares tragic life story.

Baby Lucy, Olympia's child, for whose sake the girl-mother is fighting for her freedom, was not at all afraid to have her picture taken.

The child mother is comforted by being allowed to have her baby with her in jail.

Olympia spends much of her time when not in court praying. She is shown above imploring Heaven's aid to gain her freedom

Olympia Says Mother Wanted to Drown Her

FASHIONS FOOTWEAR THAT LACES INSIDE

In one corner we have Victor A. Delamere, champion moustache grower of the world and inventor of a new style shoe.

In the other corner are the conservative shoe merchants who admire Mr. Delamere's moustache but are yet to be convinced about his shoe.

After a life of adventure with the British army in Egypt and India, Mr. Delamere, now 76 years old, settled down at 1436 Dorchester avenue to grow his moustache, invent shoe styles, and take a well-won ease.

Twenty-five years ago the former soldier owned the longest moustache in captivity. He used to tie it in bow-knots behind his ears; little children used to swing from it and do trapeze acts; he used it for a leash for his dog and thus had both hands free.

But twenty-five years ago also Mr. Delamere was in charge of the Harrison dance hall in Dorchester, when a fire started. His military training came to the fore and he herded all the dancers to safety in the street. Then he went back to fight the flames. By the time the apparatus arrived he had the fire all but extinguished, but the flames had shorn off his chief adornment. Now Mr. Delamere's moustache is a mere nothing of nine inches.

So unique was his moustache that hundreds recognized the old soldier when he returned to England a few years ago, and the moustache was the point that recalled him.

The shoe that Mr. Delamere has designed is as unique as his moustache used to be. In the first place it is tongueless and is laced on the side instead of the front, thereby preventing the entrance of rain or snow. It closes with but one lace twisted about a double row of hooks.

Mr. Delamere is confident that the new shoe will bring him more fame than the moustache ever did.

CROWDS IN SWEDEN GREET "PUSSYFOOT"

Stockholm, Dec. 2 (A.P.)—Sweden's prohibitionists have temporarily received American reinforcement through the presence of "Pussyfoot" Johnson, who is making a lightning tour of the southern and central parts of the country and drawing large crowds. On Sunday he was admitted to the pulpit of the historic Blasieholm Church in the heart of Stockholm. As against the present restrictive system of liquor distribution in Sweden, he presented the case for the total prohibition policy as it was working in the United States.

Some Strainer!

Victor A. Delamere, champion moustache grower, veteran soldier and Dorchester fire hero, who has invented a new snow and rain-excluding shoe that laces on the inside. His moustache is 9 inches long. It used to be long enough to tie the dog.

COOLIDGE COP MUTILATED

Washington, Dec. 2.—Paul A. McDuffie, thirty-three, a White House policeman, staggered into Providence Hospital today the victim of an attack by mutilators. He had been drugged and operated upon by three men whose names he was unable to give.

The officer was in a critical condition from loss of blood and the effects of drugs.

He said that late last night he was accosted by three men who said they had been robbed in a house in South Capitol street.

"They said they were ex-service men," said McDuffie. "As I am one myself I went with them. When we got to the house they offered me a drink and I accepted. After that I don't remember much until I came to the hospital."

McDuffie is married and has several children.

'I'LL THROW HER INTO RIVER!' SHE SAID

Litchfield, Ct., Dec. 2.—When court opened today Olympia Macri again took the stand, describing incidents which accompanied the birth of her daughter. She is on trial for killing Bagnano.

Olympia said that on one occasion he went to an aunt's home with her mother. A cousin invited her in, she said. Her mother said to Olympia's aunt:

"She's not your niece any more and she's not my daughter."

Olympia said that her mother responded to her cousin's suggestion that she go to the hospital by saying:

"She's not going to the hospital. I'm going to throw her in the river myself."

The birth certificate was offered. The name of the father was given as John Bagnano.

Continuing her testimony, Olympia said that she wanted to take her life after her baby was born.

"Dear mama and papa, I'm going to kill myself and it'll be your own fault for not taking me home."

This she wrote in a letter which her brother Fred destroyed.

Her brother refused to get her some iodine for a cut finger, she said.

The crowning pathos in Olympia's story was when she met her own sisters on the street and they refused to speak to her for fear of the father.

The girl was on the stand for the greater part of the day and court adjourned when she was through. The courtroom was free of spectators again today.

Hangman's Noose Left for Him, So He Said

Worcester, Dec. 2.—James J. McNally, charged with desertion of his wife and two children, told a dramatic story to Judge Utley, but despite it he was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction.

McNally said he had returned home from work a year ago and found that his wife had gone, taking their two children with her. He said she had left a hangman's noose invitingly suspended above the bed, but he did not take advantage of it.

3 KILLED ON R. R. TRACK

Great Barrington, Dec. 2 (A.P.)—Three men were killed when the New York-Pittsfield Express struck a light truck at an unprotected grade crossing half a mile south of this village shortly after noon today.

George Hammer of Great Barrington, head of the Hammer Brothers Plumbing Company, was one of those killed. The others were said to be Pittsfield men engaged in installing automatic oil burners in buildings. The two companions of Hammer later were identified as John M. Burness of Pittsfield and Oliver Coen of Newtonville.

A man identified as Richard Nash, No. 54 Bromfield street, West Somerville, was killed today on Broadway, Revere, when the truck on which he was riding as a passenger collided with an automobile driven by Mrs. Anna Nelson, No. 7 Church street, Gloucester. The truck was driven by Thomas Hurley, 698 Columbia road, Dorchester, who was unhurt.

TONG DEATH WITNESS GUARDED BY SLEUTHS

Horatio Robinson, principal government witness in the case of Ah Fong, Chinaman now on trial in Suffolk Superior Court for the murder of his countryman, Chin Woon, has been under protection of detectives since he first told his story, according to Robinson's statement on the witness stand today. Robinson said he had personally asked for the protection. He could not identify the supposed murder revolver when it was shown him by Attorney John P. Feeney, counsel for Fong. The witness denied he was receiving money from the family of the slain man.

WED TO MUSIC THAT COMES OVER AIR

A bride and bridegroom who walk on air are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Klick of Methuen and Hartford, Ct.—and why not, for their wedding march came winging out of the ether from the Boston Chamber of Commerce in a truly novel nuptial. Miss Maude Dumore of Lawrence was the bride. The wedding was in Methuen. It's because of her niece and the radio proclivities of that niece that Mrs. Klick blushed to the radio as the parson tied the knot.

Miss Dumore is the aunt of Mrs. F. M. Mahoney of No. 28 Howe street, Methuen, and it was at her niece's home that she was wed.

Mrs. Mahoney has a radio and on Sundays she has been accustomed to listen in on the organ broadcasts of Louis Weir from the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Music was needed for the wedding and Mrs. Mahoney, having an idea, wrote to the Chamber. Her request was this:

"Would Mr. Weir of the Chamber kindly play a wedding march on the organ at 2:30 o'clock sharp, on Sunday afternoon?"

Benjamin Alexander, assistant to Secretary McKibben of the chamber, assured Mrs. Mahoney that Mr. Weir would be delighted.

Hence on Sunday afternoon the wedding party was gathered, some forty in number, including the pastor of the First Baptist Church in Methuen, the Rev. John Ward Moore.

When all was in readiness Mrs. Mahoney turned in, and at 2:30 to the dot the strains of Wagner's wedding march came over the air. The wedding ceremony immediately followed.

PASTOR'S WIFE THREATENED BY KLAN

Warned to Get Out of North Uxbridge, Says Mrs. Hinchelwood

North Uxbridge, Dec. 2.—Klan and anti-Klan sentiments are at fever heat here and in many surrounding towns over the incidents leading up to the resignation of the Rev. Geoffrey C. Hinchelwood, as pastor of the local Baptist Church.

Mrs. Hinshelwood, wife of the minister, declares that Klan sympathizers have focused their ire upon her since she took her ten-year old son, Alan, out of the public school and placed him in a parochial school.

Although the resignation of the pastor has not been acted upon by the church, Mrs. Hinshelwood says she will insist upon her husband's quitting the pastorate whether or not his resignation is accepted.

Mrs. Hinshelwood lays the blame for their troubles directly to the Klan and Klan sympathizers and is vitriolic in her denunciation of the treatment that has been accorded her.

She contends it was the refusal of her husband to join the Klan, coupled with the fetish of the towns people that she is anti Protestant that has caused them all the trouble.

Mrs. Hinshelwood says she took her son from the public school because he had been slapped and caned by the teacher there.

"It was like pulling me through barbed wire when I was forced to take my son out of the parochial school," said Mrs. Hinshelwood. "It is my own business where I send my son to school. I was threatened when I took Alan from the public school that I would be arrested if I did not send him back.

"The teacher warned me that unless Alan was back in school by noon at a certain day she would call a police officer. And she did.

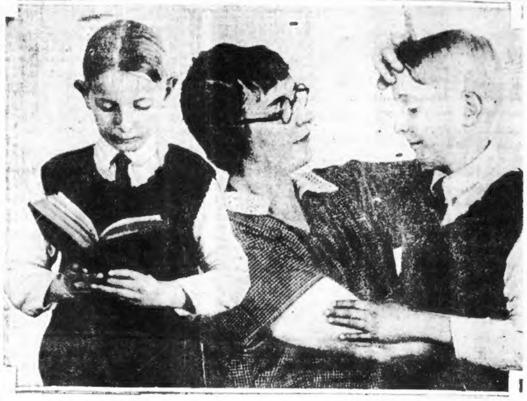
"I blame the Klan for all our troubles. I have been threatened and intend to take the matter before the chief of police.

"A member of my husband's congregation warned me that I had better quit town as quick as I could. The slapping of my boy in school is but the climax of a long hatred held against me by the hooded order.

"My home is being shunned as though I were a leper."

Alan, the indirect cause of his father's resignation, is back in the public school, but says he wants to return to the parochial school.

SCHOOL DAYS UNHAPPY FOR THEM



Above is Alan Hinschelwood, North Uxbridge school boy, reading a favorite book. He is the cause of his father's resignation as pastor of the Baptist Church there. His mother, is shown comforting the boy, who, she says, was slapped and caned in public school. She then sent him to the parochial school. Since then, she alleges, they have been victims of the hatred of the hooded Klan order.

$9,500,000 FOR HELEN TAFT

Inventories of the trust funds of the estate of the late George A. Draper of Hopedale, filed today in Worcester Probate Court by the First National Bank of Boston, trustees under the Draper will, revealed that the fund for Helen Draper Taft amounts to $9,500,000 and that for Wickliffe P. Draper $8,000,000.

The funds were appraised by Albert M. Lyon and Stafford Johnson of Boston and Campbell Bosson of Cambridge. Jointly they include Boston real estate worth $12,500,000, and personal property valued at $5,000,000.

SANTA DESIRES MANY VISITORS

It would seem that by this time every youngster living anywhere near Boston had visited Santa and his reindeer on Boston Common, where they are the guests of the Boston Evening American, but such is not the case, according to no less a person than the ruddy-cheeked saint himself.

He said today scores of children had whispered to him that he must stay and keep his reindeer here until Cousin Sally from up-State had a chance to get into Boston, or until Cousin Joe had an opportunity to come up from Cape Cod way.

In addition to the hourly arrival of newcomers there are the hundreds of kids who spend every minute of their leisure time in and around the reindeer camp. They know Dunder and Blitzen and all six of the deer by name now. these old-timers, know just what each likes to eat, and each has his or her favorite among Santa Claus' steeds.

Yesterday the deer were overjoyed in the morning. They smelled snow and it was like a taste of home to them. They joyed when the first few flakes fell and even forgot the admiration of the youngsters in their elation. But when the snow turned into rain, as our early snow-falls have a way of doing, the reindeer were distressed. This was a new experience for them. They have been accustomed to real snow, which, if it turned at all, turned into hail and sleet. The rise in temperature that accompanied the change didn't please them at all.

But Santa and the Eskimo, "Bobby," who has them in charge prevented the light-footed animals from manifesting their displeasure with the climate. They kept Dancer and Prancer and all the rest in the best of humor, and after a time the deer seemed to welcome the rain.

ARREST NEAR IN HUNT FOR ALICE CORBETT

Northampton, Dec. 2.—State Detective Joseph Daly, in charge of the search for Alice M. Corbett, nineteen-year-old Smith College junior, who has been mysteriously missing since Friday, November 13, and five operatives of the Pinkerton agency are in Westfield today questioning three youths and two girls.

They announce that at least two and possibly all five will be placed under arrest in connection with the disappearance.

The detectives claim the five, all students, know all about the mysterious "letters" received by them and signed "Alice M. Corbett."

They also declare the persons questioned are guilty of throwing pieces of clothing and bits of lingerie in the Connecticut river to create the impression that the missing girl is dead.

FIND WOMAN RESIDENT OF ADAMS HOUSE DEAD IN BED

Mrs. Frances Jack, a wealthy middle-aged woman who for many years has made her home at the Adams House, was found dead in bed at the hotel today. When a friend went to call upon Mrs. Jack she could not be aroused. Hotel employes entered the room and found the body. Medical Examiner George B. Magrath was called and pronounced death due to heart failure.

WANTS CONTINUATION SCHOOL HOURS RAISED

Payson Smith, commissioner of education, today recommended to the Legislature that children who are now attending school four hours a week after reaching the age of fourteen, under the continuation school plan, be required to attend one half of the hours put in by the pupils in the regular grammar school until they reach the age of sixteen.

'LITTLE PARIS' PROPRIETOR LOSES ON FINAL APPEAL

Peter Patalano, who carried his fight on a liquor conviction to the Supreme Court, lost his final appeal today and must serve nine months in the House of Correction as well as pay a fine of $600. Patalano was owner of a place known as "Little Paris" in the Brickbottom section of Somerville, supposed to have been frequented by students of Cambridge, Arlington and Watertown. He was found not guilty of selling a drink to a liquor agent, but was found guilty of keeping and exposing liquor for sale and maintaining a common nuisance.

CHARGE B. & M. BREAKS LAW IN N. HAMPSHIRE

Concord, N. H., Dec. 2 (A.P.).—The State of New Hampshire today filed a bill in equity requesting the Merrimack County Superior Court to order the Boston & Maine Railroad to bring the number of employes in its New Hampshire repair shops to a total equal at least to the number employed in 1917.

The action against the railroad was precipitated by the closing of the old locomotive shop in Concord a few weeks ago.

The State contends that a statute enacted in 1917 is being violated. The statutes requires as a condition to permission for the reorganization of the road that shops in the State should not be discontinued or the number employed decreased.

It is held by the State that the shop forces have been reduced 23 per cent. since 1917, while employes have increased 6.7 per cent for the system as a whole, and that the ratio of New Hampshire employes to others on the system has dropped from 20.9 per cent. to 15.8 per cent.

Here's a $91,000 Xmas Present for Someone

Washington, Dec. 2 (A.P.).—Secretary Mellon has been unable to find the proper place to dispose of a fund of $91,000 of which he had custody, and has asked the Department of Justice to start court proceedings to decide to whom the money shall be paid.

The fund represents a payment by the government of Peru to the heirs of John Celestine Landreau, for services in connection with mining developments.

HUBBY CALLED LIAR BY WIFE IN COURT

A family row in the court room resulted at the hearing today in Middlesex Probate Court of the suit for separate support brought by Mrs. Mildred Clark of Somerville against her husband, Leon L. Clark, Somerville city forester.

Clark cross-examined witnesses for his wife. Then taking the stand in his own defense, he testified.

"It's a shame to say I was intoxicated, after all I tried to do for my wife and two children."

"That's a lie!" shouted Mrs. Clark, standing up.

"It's the truth," roared Clark, and a deputy sheriff rapped for order as Mrs. Clark's mother joined the row.

Court officers sighed with relief when Clark said he would not undertake to cross-examine his wife, after she had finished her direct testimony, charging him with slapping her mouth, striking her in the eye and failing to work to support her.

Clark declared that his wife threw pepper in his eyes on one occasion and often tossed bread knives at him. He said he tried in vain to get her to return to live with him, and blamed a Wakefield family for alienating her affections.

Judge Beane took the case under advisement.

KIP'S COUNSEL LASHES BRIDE IN LAST PLEA

six feet under the ground if you keep him chained to this woman."

He admitted that subterfuge had been practised by the Rhinelander attorneys in gaining Leonard's consent to separation from his wife until the matter of her color could be investigated.

"The question which started this battle has already been settled by the defense attorney," he stated. "That is the question of color. It has been confessed by the defense but it has not been eliminated from the issues."

Referring to the interviews with the newspapers immediately after the news of the marriage became public, Mills asserted that "Leonard then stood by his wife. He loved her—that is the wonder of this case."

As he started his address, Attorney Mills faced Judge Morschauser, bowed, and said:

"Never before in the borders of this State has an important trial, where the populace clamored for admission, been conducted with such propriety and dignity."

Pounding his fists against his chest, he then swung toward Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Mrs. Kip, and said:

"I thank you from the bottom of my heart for not sneering at the paralyzed face of my client while he struggled to answer your questions."

Facing the jury again he continued:

"My learned adversary has told you these two people can never live together again, and I agree with him.

"Gentlemen, the first question, that of the color of the defendant, has been conceded. Her learned counsel has admitted she is colored and the court has directed to return a verdict in our favor. Think of it! That was the question that brought us here."

Referring to his treatment of Mrs. Jones, the dusky bride's aged mother, Mills said:

"Mr. Davis has accused me of outrageous treatment of the defendant's mother. I deny it. That is not the way I was reared in the hills of old New England. If I did such a thing my old mother would rise from her grave and smite me down."

He talked in a low, sweet tone as he looked squarely at Mrs. Jones, who sat with her eyes closed. He had drawn from the latter the secret of a childhood indiscretion.

"Now we come to those pitiable letters with which this girl pursued this youth when his father sent him on that long trip with a faithless guardian." Mills then went on.

"Despite this guardian, her letters came to him, one after the other, appealing to him to court her. Is it any wonder that he fell in love with her?

"Then when he returned, he raced across the continent and cast himself at her feet before he even saw his father!

RATHER BE IN A CASKET.

"Now, gentlemen, this question of race is most important. If any of you had a son I am sure you would rather see him in a casket than see him married to a mulatto wife!"

"I object to this," said Davis. "He has no right to say what jurors think about their sons."

"Objection overruled," said the court.

"Now, gentlemen, I am also certain if you had a daughter you would rather see her white hands crossed upon her shroud than see her in the embrace of a mulatto husband."

Turning to Leonard, he cried, pointing at him:

"Look at him, gentlemen, look at that face! During all this trial that face has never smiled. If I did not have his birth certificate I would be certain he was much older than twenty-two.

"This woman (pointing to Mrs. Jones) was a cook on an English estate and there she met a man of dark color, the coachman, who courted her. There is no prejudice in England against colored people as there is here.

WANTED WHITE HUSBANDS

"So they came to this country, lived and prospered. And she, I don't blame her, conceived the ambition of getting white husbands for her younger daughters.

"That is why she made Grace give up Leonard's ring. Grace had already captivated a white man and she wanted no interference there. Alice got the ring and his attentions to her were encouraged, even connived at.

"Gentlemen, my adversary has reproached me and this young man for bringing out in this court his affairs with this woman. He has called it an [illegible] for him to sit up on the stand and admit his conduct, and I [illegible] here that any man, who, after sharing a woman's love, publishes it to the world should be burned at the stake and his ashes scattered to the four winds.

"[illegible] gentlemen, if we had [illegible] them these would have been [illegible] before this court for this [illegible] the young man.

"[illegible] had not spoken [illegible] would [illegible] free [illegible] was [illegible] virtues would have no reason [illegible] against her.

KIP "WAS ONLY HER SLAVE."

"He does not dare to [illegible] on the stand to withstand cross-examination! During this case my very life has been threatened—"

"I object to this," cried Atty. Davis. "Is there any evidence in this case that his life was threatened?"

"Well, yes, in this case," replied Mills. "But I withdraw the remark."

"I do not claim that this young man is a Romeo," he then continued; "in fact, it is phenomenal to me just how much brains he has.

"This woman believed he was her slave and when Jacobs took him away she sought him out, hoping to bring him back and resume her sway over him."

Turning on his client's own kin, Attorney Mills assailed Kip's father for neglect in watching over the boy.

"Philip Rhinelander is more to blame for the fool position that this young man has brought himself into than the young man himself."

"NEVER MET THE JONESES."

Mr. Mills said that for years the elder Rhinelander had neglected Leonard, citing as an instance the fact that Philip Rhinelander had never visited the boarding school in Connecticut during the time Leonard attended there.

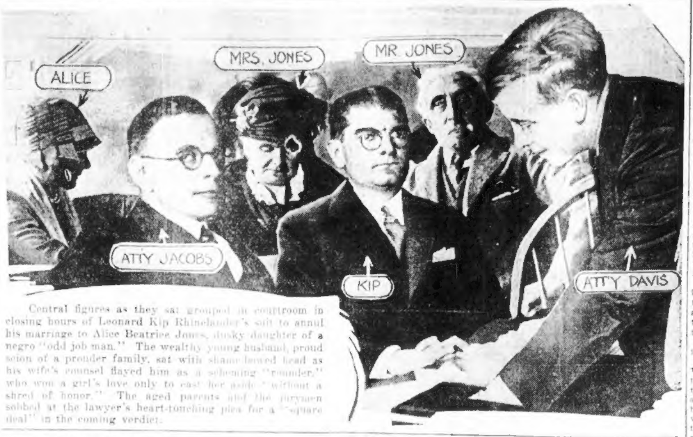
Philip Rhinelander never set eyes on any member of the Jones family, Mills said.

Mills made a point of the absence from the court at any time of any member of Rhinelander's family, while Alice [illegible] been supported by all of her kin. [illegible] pictured himself as the [illegible] of his backward client.

Citing further the father's neglect, Mills said:

"When the father found this son of 18, with a [illegible] stopping at a hotel with a woman, what did he do? He sent a lawyer to see him instead of going himself."

LAST OF HUGUENOTS ON PILLORY OF SHAME!



Central figures as they sat grouped in courtroom in closing hours of Leonard Kip Rhinelander's suit to annul his marriage to Alice Beatrice Jones, dusky daughter of a negro "odd job man." The wealthy young husband, proud scion of a prouder family, sat with shame-bowed head as his wife's counsel flayed him as a scheming "rounder," who won a girl's love only to cast her aside "without a shred of honor." The aged parents and the jurymen sobbed at the lawyer's heart-touching plea for a "square deal" in the coming verdict.

ARSON CHARGE AGAINST DORCHESTER YOUTH

George Chisholm, 17, of Napes street, Dorchester, will be arraigned in Municipal Court charged with incendiarism in connection with a fire he is alleged to have set in the basement of the building at No. 129 Cross street, North End. The fire department answering a still alarm quickly extinguished it. Chisholm, found near the scene, was placed under arrest. According to police of the Hanover street station, the youth admitted starting the fire, but refused to give a reason for his action.

COURT ORDERS SURRENDER OF PETTICOAT CO. BOOKS

Judge James A. Lowell in Federal District Court today ordered Saul Brown, treasurer of the defunct Perfect Petticoat Company, Washington street, to turn over to Trustee A. L. Deutschman certain books before 1 o'clock Saturday or be declared in contempt of court. Deutschman declares the books are essential to the proper findings of the financial condition of the concern and adds that Brown has continually refused to turn them over to him.

GOV. PINCHOT EXPECTED TO CALL SOLONS

Harrisburg, Pa., Dec. 2 (I.N.S.)—The refusal of the anthracite operators to accept the peace plan of Governor Gifford Pinchot in the mine wage controversy practically assures the calling of an extra session of the Pennsylvania Legislature.

This was the opinion on Capitol Hill today, following the declaration of the State's chief executive that "the operators had turned down industrial peace and declared war."

In the absence of Federal intervention and with coal supplies being steadily depleted, it is expected that Governor Pinchot's next move may be to seek a legislative remedy for the settlement of the anthracite strike.

It is understood that a movement has been started to repeal the anthracite coal tax. This would mean a possible reduction of from 50 cents to $1 on each ton of coal shipped to the market.

The operators insist that the door is not closed to negotiations.

"Quite the contrary," said Major W. W. Inglis, spokesman for the anthracite operators. "We are anxious to secure a real and lasting peace and negotiations to that end cannot begin too quickly. The difficulty with the Pinchot proposals is that they do not pave the way even for peace, much less a lasting one."

President Lewis, of the mine workers, upon leaving for home, said: "The fight is now between the anthracite-consuming public, as represented by Governor Pinchot, and the anthracite operators."

B. & M. CAMBRIDGE FREIGHT YARD HEARING POSTPONED

The Public Utilities Commission today postponed until January 7 a hearing on the petition of the Boston & Maine Railroad for the right to take by eminent domain three parcels of land, consisting of [illegible] feet, in Cambridge, to be used for freight terminal purposes.

23,875 FOR REPEAL OF VETS' PREFERENCE LAW

Despite the appeal of local American Legion officials to the voters not to sign the initiative petition circulated by the Massachusetts Civic League for repeal of the veterans' preference act, the League succeeded in filing 23,875 registered names today with Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, 3,875 names more than is required to place it before the Legislature.

Under the existing law, veterans who pass civil service examinations must be placed ahead of civilians on the eligible list, with disabled veterans at the top.

MERCHANTS ROW LIQUOR RAIDERS NAB 'CONSTABLE'

Suspicious of the number of marketmen seen daily coming out of a Merchants Row building with bundles, the headquarters liquor squad swooped down on the place today. In rooms occupied by George E. Clifford and Elmer Hines they found a trunk that contained alcohol, gin and Scotch whiskey. Also, according to the police, in the trunk was a paper empowering Clifford to act as constable on the Canadian side of the border at McAdam Junction.

WOMAN HELD IN SHORTAGE SAW HUSBAND SLAIN

Worcester, Dec. 2.—Charged with larceny of $2,300, Miss Gertrude C. Evans, 43, bookkeeper for M. Steinert & Sons, was held in $4,000 bail for the grand jury today. She pleaded not guilty.

John T. Forand, Boston auditor, testified that he found the books of the company were "juggled" beginning last January, but that the shortages were made up at the end of each month until August.

According to Stanley C. Brennan, store manager, he employed the auditor after he noticed a shortage in the concern's finances.

About fifteen years ago, Mrs. Evans stated after court, that she was an eye-witness of a fatal shooting in the home of Joseph Evans of Somerville, where she was employed as a housekeeper. Evans, a widower with two children, had killed a man he discovered in the house and was arrested on a murder charge, but was later acquitted, she said.

Mrs. Evans stated that she married her employer the following year after his acquittal but later divorced him.

It was learned later today that the man who was shot and killed was her first husband, who was a private detective named Frizer. He was forcing his way into the building to see his wife.

Frazer had seen his wife that day and he tried without success to make up their differences.

415-154 VOTE FAVORS BRIAND

Paris, Dec. 2 (A.P.)—Premier Briand, although coolly received when he read the declaration of policy of his new ministry before the Chamber of Deputies today, won a partial victory by inducing the chamber to change its methods of procedure and consider the proposed increase of 7,500,000,000 francs in the monetary circulation before discussing interpellations.

The bill, framed by Finance Minister Loucheur, raising the limit of the issue of paper money from 51,000,000,000 to 58,500,000,000 francs, was introduced at once and referred to the finance committee which demanded a suspension of the session until 9 p. m.

Upon the required vote between this hour and postponement to tomorrow, the finance committee's demand was carried by 415 to 154.

Briand in his statement expressed hope that France's allies and friends will take into consideration the forthcoming settlement of France's precarious financial situation, and the necessity for them to collaborate in the revaluation of the French franc.

The players were quick to [illegible] omission and commission and [illegible] declared after the [illegible] that they should have [illegible] two more touchdowns [illegible] against their rivals.

The football team, however, were four days behind thousands of Boston's football and movie fans. The latter saw the pictures on the screen at the Metropolitan just two hours after the game was over.

This is something of a record in the annals of the news reel and classes with several other big "beats" secured by the International News Reel.

POLICE WANT DIVER TO SEARCH FOR MACLARY

A special appropriation to secure the services of a diver to search the quarry pits in East Milton for James L. Maclary, No. 22 Hollis street, East Milton, missing since Thanksgiving, will be sought by Chief of Police James J. [illegible] of Milton, when the Selectmen of the town convene Friday night. Today, the sixth of the search, the police combed the woods off Randolph avenue, proceeding towards Stoughton and Canton. Fear that dynamite placed in the Milton and East Quincy quarries might blow the body of Maclary to atoms has prevented the chief from using that method of recovery.

One-Hour Parking Starts New Year's

Radical changes in the traffic regulations were made public today by the Board of Street Commissioners to go into effect on January 1.

The most important changes in the traffic rules are found in the parking regulations. For many years the limit had been twenty minutes. The revised regulations of the board makes the stopping time in most places throughout the city one hour.

The outstanding reason for this change is that it was demanded by the business interests. Retail merchants in the downtown section declared the twenty-minute parking rule worked a positive hardship on them.

Under the previous regulations there were a number of places where one hour parking was permitted. At these places, under the new regulations, two hours are allowed.

The two-hour rule applies in Park street and Tremont street, Boston Common side; Boylston street opposite the Public Gardens; Newbury street between Berkeley and Clarendon streets, National History Society and Boston University side; Bowdoin street, between Beacon and Derne streets, State House side; Deane street, northerly side; Montgomery street, between Tremont and Clarendon streets, west side; State street, between McKinley square and Atlantic avenue; Pemberton square, Court House side.

The unlimited parking time on both sides of Charles street, between Boylston and Beacon streets, on Beacon street between Charles and Arlington streets, on Arlington street, between Beacon and Boylston streets, and on Dorchester avenue between Congress street and the Fort Point Channel draw bridge has been partly removed. The unlimited period at these points will henceforth be between 10 o'clock p. m. and 7 o'clock a. m.

Owing to the rapidly increasing traffic in Park square, due to development in the old railroad yards and the fact that Columbus avenue is attracting more business in through traffic south, the commission has decreed that there shall be no left turn into Park square from Boylston street, going southerly.

Another rule of importance is that affecting the theatre district on Tremont street, the temporary rule for the theatre season being made permanent. Between 7:30 and 8:30 p. m. on Wednesday and Saturday, between 1:30 and 2:30 p. m. and 4:30 and 5:30 p. m., Sundays and holidays excepted, the one-way restriction is southerly from Stuart street to Broadway.

Under the old rule Washington street was restricted between Cornhill and Stuart street. Now the restriction is extended to Haymarket square.

GREEN FINCH WILL HAVE TO CHANGE ITS MENU

Washington, Dec. 2 (A.P.)—The Department of Agriculture has determined that the vireo, or greenfinch, while a charming songster and useful destroyer of harmful insects, is ungallant to ladybird beetles, which also are beneficial to man and are thoroughly harmless. In fact, he eats them.

This is the only severe indictment the department has found against the vireo, all the species of which were declared in a bulletin issued today to be among the most useful of birds.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Miss Constance Percival Given Brilliant Coming Out Party at Hotel Somerset

THROUGH CHANGING SHAFTS OF RAINBOW light, Mrs. David C. Percival's ball guests danced gaily in the Hotel Somerset, honoring the debutante daughter, Miss Constance Percival. It was a brilliant vista of kaleidoscopic color carried out in an arbor motif with decorations of clustered green and gold balloons like enormous grapes.

MRS. PERCIVAL in supple black velvet with a suggestion of green in its smart draping, the bud in white velvet, severely simple and quite effective, and Mrs. W. Scott Blanchard (Elizabeth Percival) in wild rose pink velvet received at the upper end of the stately ballroom, surrounded by massed blossoms.

FOR THE USHERS' dinner before the ball (also a Percival hospitality and at the Somerset) thirty-two young girls and men were bidden—to dine about flower banked tables under the chaperonage of the youthful Mrs. Scott Blanchard, up from Woodmere, L. I., for the festivities.

A FOURSOME OF out-of-town girls were honor guests for the dance, New Yorkers all—Miss Katherine Comly, Miss Helen Ward, Miss Claire Birge and Miss Dorothy Donaldson—schoolmates of Miss Percival at that highly individual girls' school at Farmington.

THEY STAY ON for a few days, two as house guests at the Percival establishment in Commonwealth avenue, and two as guests of Mrs. Phineas W. Sprague and Miss Elizabeth Sprague at the nearby Sprague home also in that same notable thoroughfare.

A FORMAL AFTERNOON tea, followed immediately by a dinner for buds and their squires and an evening at the theatre—this was the jolly manner by which Miss Emily Evatt, daughter of Mrs. Walter Evatt of Brookline, made her debut.

MISS VIRGINIA LEES, a dashing member of last year's coterie, headed the pourers' group and a lovely Baltimorean, Miss Virginia Watts, came to Boston to be Miss Evatt's house and honor guest for the triple gayety. She and the bud were schoolmates at Mt. Vernon.

MRS. EDWIN S. WEBSTER of Dartmouth street and Chestnut Hill, whose name graces many a patroness' list.

DEBUTANTES' FIRST choice, white, was the tintless color for the coming out gown, a sheer crepe ornamented with silver cloth and ermine bands. Mrs. Evatt wore hydrangea blue lace, and Miss Watts a stunning pomegranate red velvet with crepe.

THE SEASON LATER holds a number of other affairs for Miss Evatt. On Friday Mrs. Paul F. Clark of Chestnut Hill avenue is hostess for a dinner and theatre party, and December 17 Mrs. Evatt gives a dinner and dance out at the Longwood Cricket Club.

NEW YEAR'S DAY will find this much-feted bud down in Baltimore, to be Miss Watts' guest and to be presented to Baltimore society in the delightful and time-honored way of the smart set there. To have both a Boston and Baltimore coming out is joy indeed to any bud.

AN INFORMAL LUNCHEON for buds is a pretty function on today's calendar. Miss Juliet Greene and Miss Evelyn Windeler are hostesses and Miss Margaret Bent and Miss Mary Cushing the buds so honored. It will be a "stand-up" luncheon, like the Sewing Circles of yesteryear.

THIRTY GIRLS are guests, a sprinkling of last year's set and some of the more prominent debutantes of the present Winter. Miss Cushing is the Harvey Cushings' daughter, and Miss Bent is the daughter of Newell Bent and has a large ball on the social tapis for December 10.

AT THE UNION CLUB today, Mrs. Nathaniel F. Emmons is hostess at luncheon for Her Grace the Duchess of Rutland, Mrs. Frederic Cameron Church, Jr., and Mrs. Curtis Guild. It's one of the Duchess' farewell appearances in Boston's Belgravia.

SOON SHE DEPARTS for the Middle West, where her much paragraphed daughter, Lady Diana Manners, continues appearances in "The Miracle." Meanwhile interest here continues unabated in the showing, at the Vose Galleries, of drawings by the Duchess.

TALENTS IN VARIETY were apportioned the Manners family. Lady Diana's fame and golden English beauty are world famous. Her mother's distinction as an artist is quite wide and merited, entirely aside from the surrounding glamour of rank and place.

TODAY A SMALL ARMY gathers in Mechanics Building to inaugurate the four-day "Tent City Bazaar" and huge Military Tournament which is the Winter's very largest venture philanthropically and interests all service people and the Army and Navy Club's friendly hosts.

A MYRIAD ATTRACTIONS are set forth, all designed to make possible a goodly sum wherewith to complete the new clubhouse for service men, a labor of love well under way toward fulfillment. Guy Murchie, Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman and Mrs. Walter M. Pratt are leaders.

SAVES $288 IN $4000 BUDGET

"It is easy to save money, if people will only put their minds to it," said Miss S. Agnes Donham today, in her lecture at the "Budget Clinic" in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Miss Donham, with Miss May Mellus of Brookline acting as the troubled housewife discussed the problems that confront a man and wife with two young children on a yearly income of $4,000.

Food is the big item, totalling $1,092, including noon day luncheon for the husband. Miss Donham's apportionment follows:

Maid service $150, kitchen supplies $26, minor repairs $12, telephone $36, fire insurance $6, coal and wood $155, gas $45, electricity $38, laundry $50, personal expenses $129, clothing for wife $175, clothing for husband $200, clothing for children $100, life insurance $228, rent $504, development (education) $506, incidentals such as newspapers, magazines, church contributions, $157, savings $288.

"As a general rule," explained Miss Donham, "each budget must be handled according to the desires and fancies of those concerned."

'CANDIDA' LAST WORD OF SHAW IN DRAMA

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

WHATEVER else may be said of Bernard Shaw he is always interesting. Those who have followed him intimately knows that he rants and preaches as he writes; also that he laughs as much at his audiences as he expects his audiences to laugh at him. That is Shaw—the mystery man of the drama.

In "Candida" at the Plymouth, revived by the Actors' Theatre, Inc., Mr. Shaw takes a new lease of life in what should go down in theatrical history as his best comedy. Mr. Shaw is never clearly understood. He preaches in his own fashion; he interprets the drama after his own notions. "Candida," perhaps, is the gem of the Shaw collection of glowing spots in the modern theatre, and after an evening at the Plymouth, it is easy to acclaim with proper artistic reserve that he grows brighter with age.

Out of the season's wholesale output of comedy, drama and all 'round theatrical sensation, "Candida" appears, without effort, to catch the public eye. Strangely enough, it is both aged in treatment and new in human texture. Leg-of-mutton sleeves on a stenographer may stir a laugh; the enveloping skirts of Candida may awaken wonder and, perhaps, derision—but none of it kills human interest in the very likely people of whom Shaw writes.

It was a good many years ago that Arnold Daly brought "Candida" to the American stage. By his own talent and the novelty of Shavian observation "Candida" swept from Broadway on special matinees, to Boston, to Cleveland, to Chicago and to wherever the theatre had an open house. The success, however, was not Arnold Daly—it was Bernard Shaw. The vitrolic, writing Irishman had proved by other works and by years of honest toil that he alone had made "Candida" and a half-score of other plays something to be taken seriously by the professors of the drama.

As a matter of pure calculation, "Candida" has outlived its original critics and is still running strong with those who know Shaw for his deeds instead of his reputation.

In the performance at the Plymouth, Carroll McComas, in the title role, lifts herself to conspicuous distinction of deep understanding and sympathy. Morgon Farley, as the poet lover and irresponsible Romeo, was impressive in his impersonation of the youthful lover. Harry C. Browne, as the calculating, frigid clergyman and husband of Candida, was all that the most ardent playgoer could expect. And that takes care of the Astors' (Inc.) cast.

"Candida," by any measure, is Shaw's best comedy. If you cannot accept the writing Irishman on his own terms there is nothing to be said.

TENT CITY FAIR IN FULL SWING

The opening of Tent City giant bazaar, under the auspices of the Army and Navy Club, drew thousands of visitors to Mechanics Building today. The proceeds of the affair, which will close Saturday, December 5, will be turned over to the new building fund of the Enlisted Men's Club.

Among the many features are the navy booth, in charge of a detail from the Charlestown Navy Yard, and the New England aviation show, which includes a display of service airplanes under the direction of Captain Lyle C. White of the Boston Air Port.

A program of entertainment will be staged every afternoon and evening under the direction of William J. Newman, chairman of the entertainment committee. Thirty-five booths have been set up in the main hall.

CHILE OBJECTS TO PERSHING

Geneva, Dec. 2 (A.P.)—The old controversy between Chile and Peru over the sovereignty of Tacna and Arica has been brought to the attention of the League of Nations by the Chilean minister at Berne, Valdes Mendeville, who has deposited with the league's secretary general a memorandum regarding the delay in holding the plebiscite.

The memorandum is regarded by some as a protest against John J. Pershing, president of the plebiscitary commission.

"The commission," says the memorandum, "has been sitting at Arica for four months and Chile has fulfilled all the conditions laid down by General Pershing, including a guarantee for impartiality of voting and withdrawal of troops. Nevertheless, General Pershing has convoked new meetings of the commission without putting on the agenda the questions of fixing a plebiscite date or voting conditions.'

"If General Pershing persists in not hastening the plebiscite," the memorandum adds, "he is playing the game of the Peruvians and becoming involuntarily the best collaborator of Peruvian obstruction."

DEMAND COURT RULING ON AGE PENSION

Notwithstanding three rejections by Attorney-General Benton of a petition for old age pension legislation, brought by Joseph LaFontaine of Brockton and others, in the last two months, the petitioners refuse to accept his ruling as to the unconstitutionality as conclusive and will seek the opinion of the Supreme Court.

"If the attorney-general is sound in his view," Conrad W. Croker, counsel for the petitioners today declared, "then it would seem logically to follow that we cannot constitutionally spend a single dollar of public money in support of alms-houses, maternity aid or child welfare assistance.

"If such is the case, the sooner the people of Massachusetts are made aware of the fact by a decision of the Supreme Judicial Court, the sooner they will be in a position to set about the adoption of such an amendment to our Constitution as may be necessary to adequately cover all these highly essential sociological activities.

"Obviously, until our highest court has adequately dealt with this question, public sentiment is set at naught, the findings of the special commission are of no more than academic value and the further introduction of non-contributory old age assistance bills in the Legislature will be void of any practical value or effect."

FAY. KING

By FAY KING.

Do you know that about twenty-one million letters could not be delivered and went to the Dead Letter Office in Washington last year, and that over eight hundred thousand packages did likewise, because they were not properly addressed?

Do you know that it costs your Uncle Sam almost two million dollars a year to look up addresses on misdirected letters; and in one city it costs over five hundred dollars daily for this alone?

Postoffices are just as anxious as you are to see that your letter or package is delivered promptly and safely, but this is humanly impossible if you do not put the stamp in the right place; write plainly with fresh ink, and put your return address either up in the left-hand corner or on the back of the envelope, so that the letter may be returned to you if it cannot be delivered.

Much heartache, unhappiness and misunderstanding could be avoided if the writer does this little thing.

Not long ago a young man committed suicide in London because he did not receive an answer to a letter he sent to a young lady. It was found that the envelope was too large to send through the tube and its delivery was delayed on that account; so the young lady had not received his letter, but he had not received it in time to prevent his suicide. So that is a lesson to use regular sized envelopes. Those too large or too small may be distinctive, but they are not safe!

If you send a small gift like a thimble or a pencil, put the small box into a larger box filled out with tissue paper, to insure safe handling.

Remember, that the people who work in the post-office are not machines, but folks like you, who are looking forward to a happy Christmas Day. Mail early, and do your part so that they can handle the mail without delay and enjoy their Christmas, too.

It is better to spell out the name of the State, as the abbreviations of many of the States look so much alike if not written plainly. As, for instance, California (Cal.) and Colorado (Col.). Many States have small towns of the same name.

Do your part, and the post-office will do its part, and everybody will be happy.

HIS CHECK BOOK SAVES LAWYER

Forethought in carrying his check book when he left home today saved a prominent young Dorchester attorney from a seat in the prisoners' cage in court.

He appeared for Maurice Miller of Callender street, Dorchester, charged with having unadjusted lenses on his automobile and pleaded guilty for his client before Judge Churchill, asking to have the case placed on file.

The judge, instead, imposed a fine of $10 and when the clerk announced this the attorney took up his hat and coat to depart.

"Where are you going?" asked Court Officer John Harrigan.

"I'm going out," the attorney blandly replied.

"Oh, indeed! You're going to do nothing of the kind," Harrigan countered. "Either you pay this fine or I'll lock you up."

A heated discussion followed, but John won out and after the attorney had searched his pockets in vain for a ten-spot he finally thought of the checkbook, filled in the necessary amount, handed it to Harrigan and then made his exit.

JENNINGS IS NAMED COURT MESSENGER

Judge Prest of the Suffolk Probate Court today appointed Louis V. Jennings of No. 10 Woodford street, Dorchester, as messenger of that court. Jennings takes the place of Frank W. Brown of No. 11 Gibson street, Dorchester, who has been retired because of ill health. Mr. Brown held the position for thirty-two years. Mr. Jennings has been connected with the probate office for about twenty years.

GETS 30 DAYS IN JAIL TO STUDY POET'S WORK

Eddie Murray did the work of Robin Hood to steal the works of Thomas Hood in a local department store and as a consequence has thirty days in which to acquaint himself with the works of the poet in the library of Charles street jail. Murray was arrested by store detectives. He told Judge Cohen in Municipal Court he wanted the poem to quote from Hood in his address to the Wanderers of the World.

GIRL STUDENT IS FINED

Miss Grace Stix, a Wellesley College student, was fined $15 for auto law violation in Newton Court today.

Miss Stix, according to Officer Thomas Taffe, borrowed a friend's automobile a few nights ago in Wellesley and was halted by him as she was driving on a one-way street.

She had neither license nor registration.

Grace pleaded guilty to all charges and was fined $5 for violation of the city ordinance, $10 for driving without a license and the court filed the charge of driving without being registered.

Ten more autoists, all men, were also fined for violation.

LAKECROFT IS ENJOINED

Federal Judge George W. Anderson in the U. S. District Court here today issued a decree declaring the fashionable Lakecroft Inn, on the shores of Lake Chebacco, Hamilton, a common and public nuisance and ordered an injunction served against Henry C. Rausch and John Richards, owners, enjoined them from violating the national prohibition law by selling, storing, manufacturing or transporting liquors.

The injunction covers one year and the owners are charged with the costs of the case.

The roadhouse has figured in several liquor raids.

A Girl's Soul Stirs and She Wonders Why; Going Out Into the World to Learn of Love

NANCY HAWTHORNE, motherless, lives in an English country village with her father. She has an experience with Curly Collins, a country boy she has befriended. She discusses what occurs with her father. Then comes a strange stirring and she decides to see the world. In Paris she meets Cornelia Evans, daughter of an American millionaire. The girls form a studio partnership. They give a housewarming. Nancy meets Jean de Courcy, French cavalry lieutenant, who pursues Cornelia. She also meets Count de Bercy Mormal, a man who accosted her in the street. The count is Cornelia's brother-in-law. Nancy scornfully rejects his friendship. Lloyd Evans, Cornelia's brother, and his chum, Bob Whittaker, Oxford undergraduates, telegraph they're coming to Paris. Nancy is strangely affected by the news. Bob comes. Nancy fancies him. Then it dawns on her that she wants to know him better. The girls meet the boys at St. Malo.

CHAPTER 2[illegible]

NANCY and Bob drew tog[illegible] of each other's [illegible] Bob [illegible] that he felt [illegible] to prove everything himself.

[illegible] scratch a man deep enough."

"Of course!" said Nancy.

"It seems to me," said Bob, "that until a man's about thirty-five it's impossible to form any lasting [illegible]

[illegible] the human equation. To me the most fascinating thing in the world is to try and fathom people's motives, to see why they [illegible] to form and [illegible] given things [illegible]. The [illegible] are infinitely amazing." He laughed and turned to the girl. "Take Lloyd and his sister for example [illegible] and me. Lloyd and I hadn't seen each other [illegible] before we arranged [illegible] state rooms. Why? How did we know? Cornelia [illegible] sister of that man and an [illegible] and yet [illegible] her, feel [illegible] afraid to [illegible] What are the [illegible] What is there in [illegible] that Cornelia hasn't got? What is there in me that [illegible] to speak?"

His eyes were [illegible] to a [illegible] and suddenly, with an abrupt gesture leaped to his feet. "Shall we [illegible] and swim?" His voice sounded unnatural. His manner was constrained.

To Nancy, who had been following every word and expression intently, [illegible] completely unexpected.

Their whole [illegible] had been up to th[illegible] moment [illegible] utterly devoid of any recognition of sex consciousness. They had "swapped" backgrounds as Bob called it—in exciting competition in remembering incidents in their brief pasts, a competition at which [illegible] to the other in the variety of stories. Nancy, for instance, her eyes moist at the picture of his [illegible] the crowded factory, had drawn a deep groan at her recital of being left for the first eight years of her life to the [illegible] care of Mrs. Weeks.

With the unconscious dramatic heightening that always goes with a sympathetic audience, each of [illegible] really moved, had lifted corners of the veil for the other to peep through. They had been very close to each other in attention, in sympathy, in response, but with none of the subtle emphasis which marks the recognized intrusion of sex.

In Bob's sudden break of tone, with its hint of strain, it came to Nancy as surely as though he had clinched his fist [illegible] at her. She could discover no reason for it. It was as unanalyzable as the quick shifting of the wind from north to south.

She knew, however, that Bob had suddenly become obsessed with a sense of her; that he had caught fire. She knew, furthermore, that she could extinguish him as she had extinguished Curly at a later stage. But even as she knew it, her emotions came rushing to attack her. She didn't want to stop him. It was not Curly; it was Bob, the [illegible] teams of amateurs [illegible] sufficient money at the gate to pay expenses. And that [illegible] to the ultimate financial [illegible] of amateur sport.

THE start of professional basketball here was unfortunate. The directors should have seen to it that [illegible] were fit for play. The [illegible] had to wait an hour or so while temporary backboards were put up. The original glass ones were wrecked in practice.

This was carelessness—the boys [illegible] took somebody's word that the glass was unbreakable. A good start means a lot to any sport. The basket shooters will now have to file away the unfortunate effects of a bungling beginning.

But the game has enough stuff to overcome the handicap and take hold. As the pros play it, it has speed and science in large clusters.

Cheek Gets Sub for Football Debate

SPORT EDITORIAL

SOME writers spend more time preparing articles criticising football than the teams spend in practice.

Athletics in colleges and schools play as big a part in the student's life as any other branch. As football supports financially all other sports, I can't see how it has been over-emphasized. Football is the father of all athletics.

In athletics the participants learn clean, honest sportsmanship, and get body control and co-ordination of mind and body. Most college editorial writers and mere students learn pure theory and a lot of stuff that isn't nearly as applicable to everyday life as the things the football player can apply.

Just what Harvard intends to do in a football way always seems to stir up a big rumpus. After all, whatever Harvard does, football will still be THE GREATEST GAME IN THE WORLD.

The game that makes men; the men that, in comparison to non-athletes are just as good in every particular, if not better. If these critics care to curb such a game they are either misinformed, jealous, or don't care what they talk about.—HERB TREAT.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a [little] Phillips Milk of Magnesia [in] water any time for indigestion or [sour], acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentation in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste [from] the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drugstore.

The early Victorian lady was a model of domestic virtues. The young girl was a blushing maiden who fainted at the right moment and who demurely pulled down her skirts when with the help of her young man's arm she elegantly stepped over a stile.

If she were to meet her sister of today with her cropped head, her scanty skirts about her knees, cigarette between lips. Oh, how amazed she would be!

Grandmama Queen would not have approved of her. Grandmama Queen was an astonishing, imposing little lady in spite of her short stature and a certain shyness which never left her for all the might she represented.

She kept all those about her in [illegible] awe [illegible] felt [illegible] something tremendous [illegible] her [illegible] was like standing before [illegible] temple.

We children feared and venerated her. The very sound [illegible]

It is sincerely hoped that the committee assigned to draft the code will suggest that ice men respectfully—

4. Abandon the practice of asking for husband's cigars.
5. Stop parking their trucks in the middle of the streets.
6. Discontinue use of blow torches on ice after it has been weighed.

FOXY GRANDPA'S BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"FOXY GRANDPA," said Bobby coming in one morning for breakfast, "it gets harder and harder for me to get up in the mornings. I just can't seem to wake up and sometimes when you call me and I don't get up I dream that I am almost dressed."

"Why, Foxy Grandpa?" asked Bobby, looking up from his plate.

"Because in those times school started at seven o'clock in the morning."

"Tell me about some of the different things, Foxy Grandpa," said Bobby, taking a drink of hot cocoa.

"Well," said I, "school masters in those days believed thoroughly in 'Spare the rod and spoil the child.' It was very common for children to be flogged for disobedience and then often when they went home they would get a whipping from their parents, because they had gotten one in school."

"Um," said Bobby, "they got it coming and going, didn't they, Foxy Grandpa?"

"They did," I laughed. "But that wasn't all. If a boy told a lie, the teacher put hot mustard on his tongue."

Bobby made a face at this and looked very serious.

"And if any child whispered, what do you think was the punishment?" I asked.

"Couldn't guess," replied Bobby.

"He was put on the 'Dunce Stool,' with a wooden gag in his mouth." I hesitated. "And if any wicked boy stole a pencil or took anything which belonged to another child his fingers were burned with a red hot coal."

"Just think of it, Foxy Grandpa," muttered Bobby, "times have improved, haven't they?"

"Yes," said I, "you are fortunate to go to school where everything is done to make it pleasant and interesting for the pupils. How would you like to have a sharp pincher like a clothes-pin put on your nose or ear, because you didn't know your lessons? That was another punishment."

"Must have been awful," said Bobby. "Did they ever get told they were good in those schools, Foxy Grandpa, or win books for prizes or get medals or anything?"

"No," I laughed, "I don't suppose so, but I do know that the good pupils wore a badge of honor sometimes."

"A regular badge?" asked Bobby, thinking of a handsome badge like you see at conventions.

"It was this," I explained. "A pupil who did good work in school was allowed to go home with it to show his parents. And then on the other hand a poor pupil was forced often to wear a black bow on his shoulder to show his low standing."

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

Grandmother's Recipe of Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur Brings Back Color to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold. Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for only 75 cents, all ready for use.

It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

LAPHAM NAMED DIRECTOR OF CALIF. PETE

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

Henry G. Lapham

Henry G. Lapham, Boston financier, former Yale athlete and president of the B. A. A., has been added to the directorate of the California Petroleum Corporation. California Pete recently effected a merger with [illegible] Ventura [illegible], in which Mr. Lapham was largely interested.

Requests for information received by the writer very frequently convey the idea that those who make them think the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities exists for the purpose of checking the legitimate growth of new industries. I am therefore led to give full publicity to the statement that the board's aim is only to keep out frauds, as far as it can. No partnership that can stand a little investigation should be afraid to seek incorporation if that is desired.

By the way, standing in Church Green one can read after the name of one firm the inscription—"Not incorporated."

* * *

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company has shown a practical interest in the welfare of the New England shoe and leather industry by emphasizing the importance of this business in a time-table. Under the heading, "Shoes and New England," it publishes in two-page form the following interesting statement:

"The past and present history of the American shoe industry is a story of Yankee ingenuity, of inventive genius and master craftsmanship. New England has led the way in this industry because of the qualities which have always reflected themselves in New England-made shoes, and Boston has come to be the recognized center of the shoe, leather and allied industries of the country."

Of outlook in New England States, Edward Farnham Greene, treasurer of the Pacific Mills, Boston, says:

"At the present time, the general industrial situation in New England appears very much improved.

"Employment conditions show encouraging improvement. Mills are taking back more and more of their old help. Many mills are now operating on a full-time basis and at least one group of mills has recently put on a night shift."

I hear that a merger of Chandler and Cleveland is in prospect.

SKIN DISEASE

THE VALUE OF THE MERCURY-QUARTZ LAMP—ULTRA VIOLET RAY is demonstrated quickly and surely in the treatment of skin diseases. Patients who consent to publish their relief from skin diseases deserve much praise for the reason that they are naturally sensitive to publicity and only permit such publications from their desire to help others who suffer from this embarrassing malady.

Mr. G. Seekins, 68 Shawmut St., Chelsea, Mass., says:—"I had a skin trouble on my face. It would scale and itch and made me feel sensitive when in the company of anyone. I had used all kinds of lotions and ointments that are on sale in drug stores and each one seemed to make my trouble worse instead of better. I was attracted by an advertisement recommending Dr. Walsh for the treatment of skin disease and I had him treat me and I am so favorably impressed with the result of this treatment in my own case I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. Walsh to those who suffer from skin disease."

The wonderful power of the X-RAY and MERCURY-QUARTZ LIGHT TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in diseases of every description—CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASE.

No matter what your disease may be, remember that Dr. Walsh gives

The Anthracite Coal Trust Is a Menace to Life; It Should Be Dealt With by Law

The anthracite coal operators should take warning by the very general condemnation, even by conservatives, of their present attitude in the great strike.

We have not taken the part of the miners hitherto; they were partly in the wrong last Summer in promoting a strike.

We have never defended the anthracite coal operators; they have never been right in their conduct before or after a strike.

We do take the part of the public; it is entirely right in its demand that this common necessity of life shall be supplied by the criminal monopolists controlling it and at fair prices.

The operators have now again put themselves in the wrong by flatly rejecting Governor Pinchot's terms for settling the strike.

What Governor Pinchot proposed was that the miners should go back to work at the former rates of pay and that a board of investigation and award should be appointed—two men selected by the miners, two by the operators, and these four to select either one or three impartial arbitrators—to determine whether the mine operators can pay increased wages without increasing prices; an agreement to be made for five years.

The 155,000 miners on strike unanimously accepted the suggestion of Governor Pinchot.

The one hundred or more large coal operators with equal unanimity rejected it.

The operators want to fight to the finish. They want to destroy the miners' union, which is very strong in the anthracite field, and very weak in the much greater soft coal field.

The public had little sympathy with Lewis, the miner leader, as long as he refused voluntary arbitration. The public knows that the high prices of coal are due in part to the nine consecutive increases in wages granted the miners since the Roosevelt commission award of 1903.

Since we entered the World War the miners have received the following wage increase: April, 1917, 10 per cent.; November, 1917, 25 per cent.; November, 1918, 25 per cent. (on the same date contract miners were increased 40 per cent.); September, 1919, an agreement was made that war-time wages should not be reduced; September, 1920, hourly rates increased 17 per cent.; September, 1923, Governor Pinchot intervened in the last strike and obtained another increase of 10 per cent.

As long as the mine workers' leader, Mr. Lewis, refused fair and impartial arbitration, as he did last Summer, he alienated public sympathy. Now that the miners accept arbitration and the operators refuse it, the operators are in the wrong.

The excuse of the operators is flimsy. They call attention to the fact that Governor Pinchot's proposed settlement does not give the proposed arbitration commission the power to reduce wages, but only to "determine whether operators can pay increased wages without increasing prices to the public."

There is a good deal to be said in favor of maintaining the highest wages now paid in any industry. National prosperity depends on high wages. It cannot be maintained or increased unless the buying power of the whole community is maintained and increased.

The mine operators in their long, fruitless, and designedly fruitless, negotiations with the miners last Summer pretended that the sole reason they could not arbitrate the question of any increase in wages was that it would inevitably increase the cost of coal to the consumer, and the public could not be induced to pay higher prices for anthracite.

Governor Pinchot's proposed terms of settlement protected the operators and the public against such an increase.

The miners have hitherto been shy of arbitration. They have sometimes found such boards "packed" against them. But no one can doubt that, with carefulness and brains, which Leader Lewis seems to have, a really fair and square board of arbitrators could be selected. There is Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia, for instance, who began life picking slate in the coal mines. There is Secretary of Labor Davis, at Washington, who began life as an iron puddler day laborer.

Does anyone believe that such men as these have lost sympathy with or understanding of the laborer's burdens?

The coal operators are now in the wrong. They deserve no sympathy and they should receive none from Congress or legislature—from the Interstate Commission or from President Coolidge.

The public knows from government reports that in spite of all the nine increases in wages since the Roosevelt commission award, the average price of anthracite coal at the mines before the strike was $5.43, while the average price of coal to consumers in New York City, 100 miles from the mines, was $14.75.

Many of our trusts have become "good." Many of the greatest corporations are now managed with a decent regard for the rights of the public and the rights of workers.

But the anthracite coal trust is unreformed and unrepentant. Of all criminal conspiracies in restraint of trade this is probably the worst because it involves the possibility of murder along with the certainty of robbery.

The trust is not a frank and open combination for the ordinary forms of extortion. It is a secret conspiracy maintained by methods that are discreditable even according to trust ethics.

It is the one trust now against which criminal laws ought to be invoked. If existing criminal laws are not sufficient to deal with it, more rigorous laws ought to be passed.

There ought to be power in the government somewhere to deal with a trust controlling a necessity of life, the lack of which means not only discomfort but death to many people through epidemics of influenza, pneumonia and kindred diseases that, partly at least, are due to the periodical plundering of the public by withholding the fuel which is necessary to health and comfort at this time of the year.

SENTENTIAL SAYINGS OF WISDOM

THE following is a collection of sentential sayings (sayings in a single sentence) which may give you food for thought:

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THE police in several cities have started a campaign against automobile Romeos. These are the fellows who go out motoring with fifty cents worth of gasoline and nine dollars worth of [illegible].

ONE guy sits at the wheel while the other one tips his hat to women.

THE chauffeur keeps his eye on the road and his companion keeps his eyes on the sidewalk.

THE car is equipped with wonderful brakes. The smallest kind of a smile will stop it immediately.

THESE [illegible] Romeos never take long trips. They do all their touring along curbs.

THEY [illegible] on corners.

ONE guy had such good luck in picking up pretty girls that he sold his roadster and bought a bus.

A COP arrested him the other night for driving slowly along the curb. He was acquitted the next morning. He told the judge he was broadcasting.

LISTEN, WORLD!

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Elsie Robinson

"Nellie, have you washed your [illegible]? Now dearie, how many times have I told you that you mustn't put on your collar and tie until you've washed your ears? Go right back to the bathroom at once and don't you dare come out again until you're nice and clean—Freddie, come back here. Is that your sock I see dangling over your shoe? Where ARE your garters? After all I've said—"

No, dear reader, you're NOT listening in on the daily rave of some fond mother solicitous for the welfare of her little brood. This is another kind of mama entirely. The "brood" this mama controls are large, ribald young men with whiskers and the control is none of their choosing. The Welfare Committee of their university put it over on them. As to wit—

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 2.—"Gloom settled over the campus of the University of Southern California today, following announcement of the university's welfare committee that 'house mothers' must be installed at every Greek letter fraternity house immediately. Each 'mother' will have charge of the fraternity's house activities."

So there you are. Well, maybe they don't exactly inspect their ears, but what's an ear between friends? It's the principle of the thing that's sowing the seeds of Rebellion in the hearts of the L. A. Frat Brothers.

We have too much masculine tiddledy-winks as it is.

What we need now and what we will continue to need with increasing urgency is HE'S.

He has left home for the first time. He is out with the gang.

For a few years he is going to act very much as a young pup acts on his first release from the home kennel. He's going to sample everything in sight. He's going to run amuck. [illegible]

These things he's going to do and be IF HE'S A NORMAL KID. And all these things he OUGHT to do and be IF HE'S GOING TO GROW INTO A NORMAL MAN.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By Helen Rowland

SAY not unto me, O ye Foolish Ones, that, in the life of a good wife, there is but one man, who satisfieth all the desires of her heart.

For, verily, One Man may be the star of a damsel's existence; but, a married woman requireth an whole chorus!

Helen Rowland

Behold, who is this, that cometh bringing sweetness and light and a cheerful morning greeting, which is not a husbandly grunt?

Lo, it is the Iceman!

Who is this that regaleth a woman with gossip and refreshing chatter, while he admireth the gloss of her hair?

Behold it is the barber!

But, what one man could satisfy all her vanity?

Then, let an husband rejoice that he is not the Only Man in his wife's life. Let him offer up prayers of gratitude unto these, his deputies and understudies, and pay their bills with gladness and thanksgiving. For, surely, surely, they are worthy of their hire!

DESIRABLE SIZE FOR A TELESCOPE

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

I FREQUENTLY receive letters asking for information how to make a telescope. I am unable to give instructions for the grinding of lenses, or the construction of metal tubes, bearings, cells, mountings, etc., which are technical matters pertaining to shopwork.

These things must be learned by practice, and under the guidance of persons skilful in mechanical work. I, myself, have never undertaken to make a telescope. I think that, in the end, it would be more costly to construct such an instrument than to buy one—probably a better one—from a regular telescope maker.

Bell's Book

At the same time, I recognize the intense satisfaction that a person, possessing talent for practical mechanics, together with a love of astronomy, may find in imitating the immortal examples of Galileo and Herschel, the Washington and the Lincoln of the telescope.

For a general aid to such persons I would recommend Louis Bell's book on "The Telescope," which can be obtained through any book dealer, or found, probably, in any large public library.

I am also asked concerning the most desirable size and magnifying power for telescopes to be used by amateurs. If it is intended to mount the instrument under an observing dome, or in a "telescope house," an aperture of six or eight inches is not too great. "Aperture" means the diameter of the object glass (I should recommend refractors, rather than reflectors, though many prefer the latter). The magnifying power bears a certain optimum ratio to the aperture and the focal length of the object glass.

For a glass of six inches, in ordinary conditions, 300 diameters is about as great a magnification as should be used (more often 200 or 250) although, in the best conditions, as much as 500 or 600 may occasionally be employed. It is an old rule that the magnifying power for the best instruments should not be pushed beyond 100 per inch of aperture.

If the telescope is to be used out of doors, on a simple mounting, such as a tripod, four or five inches aperture is large enough, and a three-inch if of the best quality, will give great satisfaction, and serve very well for most purposes. It is with telescopes as with watches and diamonds, quality is everything, and the quality resides principally in the object glass.

Cheap, makeshift instruments are likely to lead only to disappointment and disgust. One should be willing to go to some expense for so divine a pleasure as astronomy affords. You would not, and you cannot, approach heaven's high and flaming battlements in a breakdown! But a great deal of the celestial wonders may be seen even without a telescope.

As I long ago showed in my "Astronomy With an Opera Glass," whose facts were gathered by actual inspection with such a glass of all the constellations visible in our latitudes, many beautiful and surprising stellar objects are within reach of the very simplest of optical instruments.

In these days a prism binocular may be substituted for an opera glass, or a field glass of the old types. The prism binocular is in effect a condensed telescope. Focal length is gained by sending the light rays back and forth from prism to prism on their way from object glass to eye piece, so that a little of the longitude of a telescope is compressed within the space of a handsbreadth.

Relative Loss

At the same time a great amplitude of field is gained by the telescopic construction. But there is relative loss of illumination. Opera glasses have a narrow, but brilliant, field of view, though their definition of objects is inferior to that of the best prism binoculars.

For a binocular for astronomical use I would recommend a magnifying power not exceeding eight diameters.

Higher powers are attended by increased difficulty in holding the instrument steady enough for good vision. With an eight-power binocular, having object glasses a little over three-quarters of an inch aperture, I have often enjoyed delightful views of the larger details of the lunar landscapes.

Three Minute Journeys

—By TEMPLE MANNING—

WE would undoubtedly be a bit shocked to see a traffic policeman at the corner of Boylston and Tremont streets pull out a fan and begin to ply it as he signaled the traffic to go or stop. But that is by no means an infrequent sight in Peking on a Summer day.

A fluttering of fans is the universal symptom of a hot day in China. The fan serves any number of purposes. It is used, of course, to keep the air moving and create a cool breeze. Then it is used to ward off flies and dust, and as a screen against the too brilliant rays of the sun.

Even the coolies going about their work, or carrying heavy burdens upon their backs, ply the fan busily with one hand as they go. Soldiers in the midst of their drill draw fans from their bosoms and pause to use them.

That is why the Chinese have fans of such exquisite and delightful beauty. They have developed the business of manufacturing fans to an art. They have definite types of fans for definite purposes and stations of life. The true Chinese would never use a fan with a frame of black lacquer because black is significant of impurity. Red, on the other hand, is an emblem of joy and it would not be becoming for a Chinese to go about flaunting his joy in the face of others.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

—By MARCELINE D'ALROY—

ON "A WOMAN'S SMILE"

What lies behind a woman's smile?
Ah! MEN, very often,
Would LIKE to know;
So would SOME women.
What lies BEHIND
A woman's EYES?
Sometimes a LOT more than
The smile SUGGESTS,
Sometimes, NOT SO MUCH;
For ALL a woman KNOWS
LIES behind her eyes—
Only SOMETIMES IT lies
SLEEPING.
It takes a GREAT deal
To WAKE a woman
Into the realization of
ALL she knows.
Of course, IF a girl
Gets a RUDE
AWAKENING, she thinks
She will KEEP HER
EYES WIDE OPEN
IN THE FUTURE,
And YET, when a woman
LOVES she always
CLOSES her eyes,
For Love is A DREAM.
TWO KINDS of women will
SMILE at this;
THOSE who are STILL
Dreaming, and
THOSE who have been
